MERCURY RISING | SUMMER IN THE CITY

THE COOL KIDS: D.C. residents Dejuan Souder, 12, in the water, Cameron Clayton, 12, and Katelyn Mims, 7, take advantage of a sprinkler provided by the D.C. Fire Department on Monday as temperatures again reached the low 90s. A heat advisory is in effect for the region through at least 6 p.m.

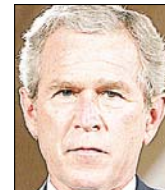

President Hedges On Leak

Bush says he'll fire any aide who 'committed a crime'

WASHINGTON | President Bush qualified his pledge to dismiss any White House official found to have leaked the name of a CIA operative, saying Monday that "if someone committed a crime" he would be fired.

In September 2003, the White House said anyone who leaked classified information in the case would be dismissed. Bush reiterated that promise last June, saying he would fire anyone found to have disclosed the officer's name.

Democrats said Bush in his new comments had "lowered the ethics bar" for his administration.

Bush

Citing an ongoing investigation into the leak, Bush would not say whether he was displeased that Rove, the deputy chief of staff, told a reporter that the wife of administration critic Joseph Wilson worked for the CIA on weapons of mass destruction issues. A 2003 phone call with Rove was the first time that Matthew Cooper of Time magazine had heard that Wilson's wife worked at the agency, according to a first-person account by Cooper in the magazine.

Rove's involvement in the leak case has worried Republicans, already anxious about Bush's decline in opinion polls. Only a fourth of Americans believe the White House is fully cooperating with the probe, according to an ABC News poll released Monday. That number has dropped from half in September 2003 when the probe began. JENNIFER LOVEN (AP)

PUNCTUALITY | Take and Bake A Chicago man took desperate measures to get to work on time, and now he's in jail instead of on the job. Miguel Espinosa stole a police car outside a restaurant Thursday, after the officer left the keys inside while going in to eat, WBBM-TV reported. Espinosa drove to his job at a bakery. Police caught him the following day when he stopped to help someone who had flagged down the squad car. (EXPRESS) EyeOpeners | Page 2

TEST DRIVES

Hugs the Road, Rides Smooth, Evades Cops

The test drive wasn't exactly what a Hamilton, N.J., dealer had in mind. Police said a man took a used Lexus out for what was supposed to be a test drive Friday, but then, with an accomplice, used it as a getaway car in a bank robbery. An hour and a half later, the men returned the car to the dealership, but the manager had already reported it stolen and police were on their way. Ryan Johnson and James Hodge drove off in a van, but were busted after a short chase. (AP)

Calls and Effect

A Somerville, Mass., drug dealer selling pills was arrested Wednesday after accidentally calling Boston City Council President Michael Flaherty and unwittingly telling him of his stash, the Boston Herald reported. Flaherty got a call on his cell phone from John Murphy, who told him he was selling Klonopin anti-depressants. Flaherty got more details from him and told police about the conversation. Officers then called back the number that Flaherty had been contacted from, saying they wanted to buy pills and setting up a sting. That night, both Murphy and his girlfriend were arrested. Orissa, India, police rounded up about 200 people watching a porn movie in a cinema hall and made them do 10 public sit-ups as punishment, Agence France Press reported Monday. Underage viewers' parents were ordered to watch their kids do the sit-ups, and all those nabbed had to publicly vow never to watch an adult film again. Earlier action against the cinema didn't stop smut screenings, "so we decided to crack down on the audience," police chief Sanjeev Panda said. (EXPRESS)

Rudolph Unrepentant for Bombings

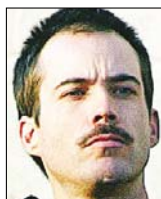

Convicted killer given life sentences for blast at Birmingham clinic

BIRMINGHAM, ALA. | Convicted bomber Eric Rudolph declared Monday that abortion must be fought with “deadly force” as a judge sentenced him to life in prison for setting off a remote-controlled bomb at an abortion clinic that killed an off-duty police officer and maimed a nurse.

“Children are disposed of at will,” the 38-year-old Rudolph said, jabbing the air in a speech that echoed a rambling manifesto he issued in April when he pleaded guilty to four bombings in all, including the blast at the 1996 Atlanta Olympics.

Rudolph’s fiery statement came as his victims confronted him in court, branding the anti-abortion extremist a cowardly “monster” and recalling how their lives were dev-asted by the 1998 clinic bombing in Birmingham.

“It gives me great delight to know you are going to spend the rest of your life sitting in an 8-by-12 box,” said the clinic’s director, Diane Derzis.

Under a plea bargain that spared him a death sentence, Rudolph received two life sentences without parole for the Birmingham bombing. Next month, he will receive two more life terms for the deadly Olympic bombing and two other attacks in Atlanta.

Rudolph spent more than five years on the run in the North Carolina wilderness, employing the survivalist techniques he learned as a soldier. He was captured in 2003 while scavenging for food behind a grocery store.

Emily Lyons, the nurse wounded by his bomb, said Rudolph was nothing but a coward. “When it was your turn to face death you weren’t so brave again,” Lyons said. “You want to see a monster, all you have to do is look in the mirror.”

Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld speaks with reporters on Monday.

Rumsfeld: Gitmo Trials To Resume

WASHINGTON | Backed by a favorable court ruling, the Pentagon intends to resume shortly the military trials of two terror suspects at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, and to file charges against eight others.

Defense Secretary Donald H. Rumsfeld said the ruling Friday by a three-judge federal appeals court panel was vindication of the Bush administration’s approach to prosecuting suspected terrorists. Critics say the approach is flawed by inadequate legal protections.

“Proceedings will resume as soon as possible against two detainees,” Rumsfeld said Monday without identifying them by name. Charges will be prepared against eight other suspects held at Guantanamo Bay, he said, and President Bush will be asked to declare additional detainees there eligible for military trials. (AP)

Mayor Convicted Of Conspiracy in Strip Club Scandal

SAN DIEGO | A federal jury Monday convicted San Diego’s new acting mayor of taking payoffs from a strip club owner to help repeal a “no-touching” law at nude clubs, the latest blow to a city awash in scandal.

Michael Zucchet, who became interim mayor over the weekend, was found guilty of conspiracy, extortion and fraud on his first business day in office. He was immediately suspended from the position, his attorney said.

It is unclear who will succeed Zucchet. Mayor Dick Murphy resigned and left office Friday, eight months into a second term cut short by mounting problems at City Hall. (AP)

Governors Decry Costs of Security

State executives warn drivers license fees could soon skyrocket

DES MOINES, IOWA | Fees for a new driver's license could triple. Lines at motor vehicles offices could stretch out the door. Governors warned Monday that states and consumers would bear much of the burden for a terrorism-driven push to turn licenses into a national ID card.

"It's a huge problem," said Democrat Ed Rendell of Pennsylvania. "Trying to make this work, there will be hell to pay." He said it would cost his state "$100 million-plus" to restructure motor vehicle offices to respond to a new federal law called the REAL ID Act.

The law that passed in June as part of an $82 billion military spending bill goes beyond an earlier measure that sought to standardize state driver's licenses. By 2008, states must begin to verify whether license applicants are American citizens or legal residents of the United States.

After an appearance at the National Governors Association meeting Monday, Homeland Security Secretary Michael Chertoff said the new law could create opportunities to protect people against identity theft. He also said his agency would work cooperatively with states. ROBERT TANNER (AP)

Study: U.S. Divorce Rate Declining

MOUNT LAUREL, N.J. | The divorce rate in the United States is falling, and a new study offers an explanation: More people are shacking up instead of getting married.

In a report released Tuesday, the co-directors of the National Marriage Project, a nonpartisan institute at Rutgers University that promotes marriage, said couples who get married are more committed to each other than those who just live together. Nine of every 1,000 married women in the United States divorced in 1960, according to the study. The rate increased to more than 22 per 1,000 by 1980 and has steadily declined since, to a little under 18 per 1,000 in 2004.

Meanwhile, the number of unmarried, opposite-sex couples living together has climbed from 439,000 in 1960 to more than 5 million now.

RETURN TO SENDER: Police arrested two men in Vietnam for allegedly attempting to send a human skull to a relative in the U.S. to be used as a prayer idol, state media reported Monday. Customs officials found the skull stuffed in a plaster bust.

Bombers' Travels Spark Questions

British agency under fire as new intel on Pakistan trips emerges

LONDON | Criticism of the British government grew Monday over the revelation that the vaunted domestic intelligence service did not detain one of the London attackers last year after linking him to a suspect in an alleged plot by other Britons of Pakistani descent to explode a truck bomb in the capital.

The MI5 found itself under fire as new information emerged Monday about the bombers' connection with Pakistan: Two of the suspects traveled together to the southern city of Karachi last November and returned to London in February. A third bomber went to the same city last July.

The British intelligence service reportedly did not find Mohammad Siddique Khan — who was checked out in connection with the alleged bomb plot last year — to be a threat to national security and failed to put him under surveillance.

Khan traveled to Karachi in November with fellow bomber Shahzad Tanweer, 22, said Shahid Hayyat of Pakistan's Federal Investigation Agency. Hasib Hussain, the 18-year-old bus bomber, went to the same city in July.

The purpose of their visits was unclear. All three were born in Britain to Pakistani parents, but their ancestral country is also home to extremist Muslim groups. (AP)

Israel Tries To Block Protesters

Forces deployed to stop settlers' rally against Gaza pullout

NETIVOT, ISRAEL | Security forces blocked thousands of Jewish settlers and their supporters from marching Monday night in protest of Israel's pullout from the Gaza Strip next month.

After a two-hour standoff, settlers said they reached an agreement with security forces to spend the night in Kfar Maimon, a village two miles from their starting point and 12 miles away from their goal — the main crossing point into the Gaza settlements.

Settlers pledged to push on toward Gaza in the morning.

About 20,000 police and soldiers were deployed in southern Israel to block the marchers, who started out after a rally in the town of Netivot.

In an unprecedented step, police fanned out across the country to prevent people from boarding buses headed for the demonstration. In Jerusalem, about a dozen demonstrators started walking toward Gaza, more than 60 miles away.

Also Monday, Egyptian mediators held talks in Gaza with Palestinian militants to try to rescue a five-month-old Mideast truce after a violent weekend. Some progress was apparent, and Palestinian rocket and mortar attacks subsided somewhat. RAVI NESSMAN (AP)

Georgian Police Release Photos of Grenade Suspect

TBILISI, GEORGIA | Authorities in Georgia on Monday released a photograph of a man suspected of throwing a grenade at a podium where President Bush was speaking this May. The grenade failed to explode and no one was hurt.

Georgian officials had initially claimed the grenade was not set to explode, and U.S. officials initially said that Bush had been in no danger, but they later said the grenade was a threat to his life. (AP)

Latest Burst of Iraq Violence Kills 24

New security push yields arrest of about 50 alleged insurgents

BAGHDAD, IRAQ | Gunmen killed at least 24 police, soldiers and government workers in Iraq on Monday, and an Iraqi general said about 50 suspected insurgents were captured in the first days of a new security operation in Baghdad.

The latest bloodshed occurred in a series of small-scale ambushes and shootings, as Baghdad received a respite Monday from the wave of suicide bombings that killed 22 people in the embattled capital the day before.

Relatives of an Iraqi professor shot dead late Sunday mourn at his funeral.

However, a car bomb targeted U.S. and Iraqi troops in Rawah, 175 miles northwest of Baghdad, witnesses reported. At least one person believed to have been a civilian was killed, the witnesses said.

The deadliest attack Monday was in the Baghdad district of Khadra, where eight policemen died in a gunbattle with insurgents, police said. It was unclear if the insurgents suffered casualties.

Gunmen also killed at least five other police officers, including a colonel, in attacks around the capital, officials said. Three civilian government employees were killed in separate ambushes in Baghdad, police reported. QASSIM ABDUL-ZAHRA (AP)

French Pedophilia Trial Concludes

ANGERS, FRANCE | Defense attorneys on Monday concluded two weeks of closing arguments in the trial of 65 people accused of participating in a pedophilia network that raped and prostituted children in western France.

In a case that has horrified the nation, investigators say 45 children between the ages of 6 months and 14 years were raped and abused by their parents, grandparents or acquaintances in a working class neighborhood of Angers from 1999 to 2002 — at times in exchange for small amounts of money, food, alcohol or cigarettes.

At the end of Monday's hearing, Judge Eric Marechal asked the defendants if they had anything to add before the jury began deliberation. Two asked their victims for forgiveness; two others proclaimed their innocence. (AP)

Emily Hits Mexican Coast

Hurricane ruins homes and vacations but no reports of major injury

PLAYA DEL CARMEN, MEXICO | Hurricane Emily stranded thousands of tourists along Mexico's luxurious Mayan Riviera and left hundreds of local residents homeless Monday, forcing many to remain in crowded, leaky shelters.

As workers at Yucatan Peninsula resorts began wading through knee-deep flood waters to assess damage under a light drizzle, the storm barreled out into the Gulf of Mexico.

There were no immediate reports of death or serious injuries on the peninsula.

Emily was expected to regain strength before slamming into Mexico's northeast coastline. Residents in the port of Tampico and along Texas' southern coastline boarded up windows and evacuated low-lying areas.

PARADISE LOST: Tourists sit on the beach in Playa del Carmen, Mexico, on Monday after Hurricane Emily roared over the area, causing damage but no serious injury.

Damage from the hurricane was evident across the eastern Yucatan, famous for its white-sand beaches and turquoise waters.

Tourists who spent the night in shelters emerged to try to find ways home. Many went to the Cancun airport, which reopened Monday.

About 60,000 tourists were evacuated from Cancun, Tulum, Playa de Carmen and Cozumel.

Al Qaeda Suspect Freed In Ruling Against EU

BERLIN | Germany's high court blocked the extradition of an al Qaeda suspect to Spain after ruling on Monday that Europe's new wide-ranging arrest warrant is invalid in its current form under German law.

The ruling, a blow to Europe's post-Sept. 11 counterterrorism plans, upheld an appeal by al Qaeda suspect Mamoun Darkazanli, a German-Syrian dual national whom Spanish authorities accuse of providing the terror network with logistical and financial support.

The Federal Constitutional Court in Karlsruhe ruled that the European warrant in its current form violates Germany's constitution and the suspect's basic rights, and was thus invalid.

German Justice Minister Brigitte Zypries described the verdict as "a blow for the government in its efforts and fight against terrorism."

Al Qaeda suspect Mamoun Darkazanli was freed from prison after the ruling.

Darkazanli, released from a Hamburg jail following the ruling, made no comments to reporters.

Darkazanli, 46, appears in a 1999 wedding video with two of the three Sept. 11, 2001, suicide pilots — Marwan al-Shehhi and Ziad Jarrah — who lived and studied in Hamburg along with lead hijacker Mohamed Atta. DAVID RISING (AP)

6-year-old's wrists, ankles bound; D.C. police question mother

WASHINGTON | Police on Monday were questioning the mother of a 6-year-old boy found dead — bound at his wrists and ankles — in the bathtub of a Southeast apartment.

His grandmother found Don Miguel Wilson around 8 a.m. when she arrived at the apartment to pick him up, Metropolitan Police Chief Charles H. Ramsey said. The woman called police and other family members who rushed to the scene.

By late in the day police hadn't identified any suspects, but they were questioning the boy's 24-year-old mother to try to piece together what happened, said Capt. C.V. Morris, who leads the department's

Md. Considering New Bridge for Bay

ANNAPOLIS, MD. | There is little doubt that a new Chesapeake Bay bridge is needed, but the question of where to put the costly span is already stirring passions on both sides of the bay — decades before a new span will be in place.

A 19-member task force appointed by Gov. Robert Ehrlich to examine the need for a new crossing is in the very early stages of its review of congestion on the existing bridge that connects Anne Arundel County with Kent Island.

Members of the panel started the study knowing that a new bridge or tunnel will cost billions of dollars, will take 20 years to build and will have a huge impact on both sides of the bay wherever it is located.

A preliminary report prepared for the task force predicted the number of vehicles using the current five-lane bridge will increase by 40 percent by 2025, with delays up to 12 hours a day. (AP)

Whirlpool Offers To Buy Maytag

BENTON HARBOR, MICH. | Whirlpool Corp., one of the largest U.S. appliance makers, made it a three-way race by offering to buy competitor Maytag Corp. for $1.37 billion in cash and stock, topping an earlier offer that Maytag accepted from an investment group.

Whirlpool said late Sunday that its offer of $17 per share for Newton, Iowa-based Maytag represents a 21 percent premium over the offer from Triton Acquisition Holding Co. Whirlpool would assume Maytag's debt of $969 million.

On May 19, Maytag agreed to be acquired by Triton, an entity organized by the New York investment company Ripplewood Holdings LLC, for $14 a share, in a deal valued at about $1.13 billion.

But on June 20, Maytag said it was considering a preliminary $1.28 billion bid from Bain Capital, Blackstone Group and China's Haier America that valued Maytag at $16 per share.

"I think that this could be an enormously positive deal for both parties, but particularly for Whirlpool," industry analyst Laura Champine said Monday.

Rising costs of raw materials have reduced Whirlpool's share value by more than half, Champine said. Joining with Maytag would allow Whirlpool to not only get better prices for raw materials but also to combine research and development resources, she said. (AP)

Got Milk? Getting Thinner?

Despite industry claims, moo may not help you lose weight

WEIGHT LOSS | Got milk? And high hopes it will help you shed a few pounds? The dairy industry is counting on it, thanks in part to a $200 million ad campaign that confidently touts studies suggesting a connection between consuming dairy products and losing weight. But dieters might want to delay sporting milk mustaches.

Though the National Dairy Council and the researchers it pays stand by their claims, few others have endorsed the dairy-diet link. Even some scientists whose research supports that idea say its conclusions are premature.

"My concern is the advertising claims by the Dairy Council have well outstripped the available data," said Dr. David Ludwig, an obesity expert at Children's Hospital Boston. In a 2002 study, he found that dairy aided weight loss.

Milk may do a body good, but scientists disagree on whether it speeds weight loss.

Those claims have received wide attention since 2003, when a coalition of dairy groups launched what has become the "3-A-Day" campaign, which advises that three servings a day of dairy supports weight loss.

The dairy campaign is based on research by Michael Zemel, a nutrition professor at the University of Tennessee who began studying the link between dairy and weight during the late 1980s. Since 2000, he has published several studies that found people who eat a lower-calorie diet and consume the recommended low- or non-fat dairy servings lose nearly twice the weight as those who only cut calories.

But his research often is misunderstood, Zemel said. It's not a case of drink milk, lose weight. It works only for people who eat a low-calorie diet and who are not already consuming three servings of dairy.

That's a bit more nuanced than the "Lose More Weight" and "Burn More Fat" emblazoned across the packaging of a growing array of dairy products, though Zemel says the industry's claims accurately represent his findings.

Dr. Walter Willett, a Harvard University nutrition expert whose recent research suggests dairy doesn't help weight loss, said Zemel's studies are too small to sustain the industry's claims. "The larger randomized trials that have been done, they don't show weight loss. If anything, they show weight gain."

How to explain the inconsistencies? Ludwig suspects it's not the dairy itself, but how it interacts with the diet. Perhaps people who drink milk instead of soda, for example, eat fewer calories because milk is more filling. That also means that healthy eaters could end up with too many calories overall if dairy replaces healthy, lower-calorie foods, Ludwig said.

I stopped eating beef about two months ago. I have been eating more vegetables and fruits since, and increased my spinach. Am I getting enough iron?

Beef is indeed a chief source. But many ready-to-eat cereals are also fortified with iron as is some bread, so you could be getting it from other sources. Vegetables, including spinach, can also pack a hefty amount, though not always in a form that's as readily absorbed by the body as other sources.

If you're eating a varied diet, you're probably getting enough iron. The exceptions are women of child bearing ages and children who need a little more. And there's a group of people, in the minority, who are so good at storing iron that they sometimes have to give transfusions to reduce their iron levels.

Tour de France Is Lance's to Lose

Everything going how Armstrong planned in bid to go out on top

CYCLING | Lance Armstrong probably couldn't have scripted the first two weeks of the Tour de France much better.

No crashes, no dehydration, no real threat from his rivals. The American has even handled the occasional below-par showing from his teammates and come away with a comfortable lead.

Now, it seems only an accident or a complete drop in form can stop him from retiring on Sunday with a seventh straight Tour victory.

"It's more secure, but it's not final. We have to be safe and know there's still tough days to come,"

Lance Armstrong, right, and teammate George Hincapie shared yuks Monday.

Armstrong said after finishing a solid seventh in the 15th stage before Monday's rest day in Pau.

"You never know, you go to a village and take a turn too fast and break your collarbone — Tour de France over," Armstrong said. "So you have to be realistic. We have a week to go and a lot of things can get in the way."

Ivan Basso is 2 minutes, 46 seconds behind in second, 1997 Tour winner Jan Ullrich trails by 5:58, and Alexandre Vinokourov by 9:38.

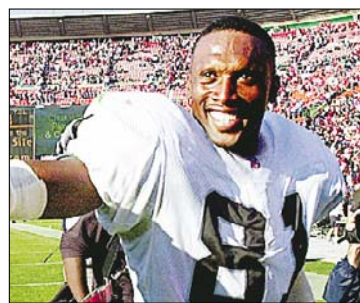

Next is one tough mountain in the Pyrenees, two other modest climbing stages, a flat stage and a time trial — Armstrong's specialty. He dominated both last year.

"He is a level above other riders, maybe two levels," cyclist Cadel Evans said. JEROME PUGMIRE (AP)

Henry said he would sit out this season if he wasn't traded. He already missed three minicamp sessions — including a mandatory three-day camp last month.

CYCLING (8:30 p.m. on OLN) Lance enters the last stages of his cycling career holding a solid lead, with all signs pointing to a seventh straight Tour victory.

BASEBALL (7 p.m. on WGN) Is the possibility of further fading by the Nats and O's too painful to watch? There's always locally neutral Chicago Cubs games on WGN. Tonight they're in Cincinnati.

Tiger Back on Track to Outdo Jack

After a lull, Woods is ahead of the game to break majors record

GOLF | Jack Nicklaus watched the final round of the British Open from his home in Florida before heading out to the golf course to watch some of his grandchildren hit balls.

This was Nicklaus doing what he loves best, spending time with his family, just two days after he retired from competitive golf with a record 18 professional major titles.

For the time being, at least. Based on what he saw Sunday at St. Andrews, there may be no stopping Woods from taking that away.

"That is the best I have seen Tiger swing. ... Tiger looked in total control," Nicklaus said. "He never looked like there was a chance for him to lose."

SEVEN UP

Jack Nicklaus' 18 career major tournament wins is safe for now — but Tiger's only 29 years old and already third. The top dogs:

18 Jack Nicklaus; 11 Walter Hagen; 10 Tiger Woods; 9 Ben Hogan; 9 Gary Player; 8 Tom Watson.

It was the 10th major title for the 29-year-old Woods, leaving him one behind Walter Hagen and eight away from the benchmark many thought never would be broken. Nicklaus was 32 when he won his 10th major title in the 1970 British Open at St. Andrews.

"Can he achieve the impossible? He's on his way," said Colin Montgomerie, who challenged Woods in the tournament briefly, but ended up losing by five shots.

WADA Chairman Criticizes Conte Plea Agreement

STERIODS | World Anti-Doping Agency chairman Richard Pound Monday criticized as "very light" a plea bargain giving BALCO founder Victor Conte four months in jail.

Conte pleaded guilty in San Francisco to steroid-distribution and money-laundering charges. Barry Bonds, Marion Jones and other athletes could have testified in a trial.

Pound said Conte "systematically tried to destroy the whole basis of sport." BETH HARRIS (AP)

Heath Shuler Wants a Return to D.C.

FOOTBALL | Former Washington Redskins quarterback Heath Shuler plans to run for Congress.

Shuler, a Democrat, said Monday he filed papers with the Federal Election Commission to run next year in the 11th Congressional District for the U.S. House seat held by Republican Charles Taylor.

"Far too many families in west-

Shuler was lackluster as Redskins QB.

Drafted in the first round by the Washington Redskins in 1994, Shuler's pro career never took off. In four-plus seasons with the Redskins and New Orleans Saints, Shuler started just 22 games, throwing for only 15 touchdowns and 33 interceptions. (AP)

MEET THE PRESS: Mexican pop mogul Thalia hasn't been shy about drumming up publicity for her many marketing ventures.

Muse of Money

Mexican pop singer Thalia is more than a voice — she's a brand

FINGERS IN EVERY PIE | Pop songstress Thalia has named her new album "El Sexto Sentido" not after a song, but after a state of mind.

"It holds a big mystery — the mystery of life, of human feeling, of broken hearts. The mystery of the sixth sense," the singer explained.

"El Sexto Sentido" (The Sixth Sense), due today on EMI Latin, is Thalia's 11th studio album. In a sense it is her most ambitious to date, even more so than her self-titled English-language debut, released three years after she married Sony Music head Tommy Mottola in 2000.

"In a way, I feel like I'm living in my sixth sense," Thalia said. "I'm very receptive to everything around me... The sixth sense liberates you from the [other] five senses, which are tricky... It makes you listen to that inside voice — your intuition — which is never wrong."

While the album is in Spanish, it includes English versions of three songs, including first single "Amar Sin Ser Amada."

In the United States, aside from the major promotional efforts awarded to an artist like Thalia, "El Sexto Sentido" will also be the first Spanish-language album to have a pre-order campaign through Apple Computer's iTunes. Buyers who pre-order the set can download free norteno and reggaeton versions of Thalia's single (the reggaeton version is produced by Hector "El Bambino") and a clip of the making of the video. The two bonus tracks can be obtained only through iTunes.

Thalia is not just a singer but a budding, and growing, brand — she has her own line of clothing sold in Kmart, a candy line (Dulceria Thalia) through a joint venture with Hershey's, a line of Thalia Eyewear and is also remembered in her home country as one of Mexico's premier soap-opera stars from her days on "Marimar," "Maria la del Barrio" and "Rosalinda."

"El Sexto Sentido" follows the path of "Thalia" in its eclectic nature — it includes heartbreaking ballads, dance tracks and straight-ahead pop — and in its very well-crafted and highly personalized songs, most courtesy of producer Estefano.

Estefano also contributed some tracks to her English-language debut. Despite a strong single ("I Want You," featuring Fat Joe), that album had modest success in the United States.

Now, Thalia returns to her roots.

"Everything in this album has to do with me," she said. "It's everything that has happened, all the tattoos of experience that I carry in my soul." LEILA COBO (BILLBOARD)

9/11 Flight's TV Drama

Discovery Channel to air a faux-doc with re-created fatal flight

DUBIOUS IDEAS | The Discovery Channel will air a re-creation of the terrorist hijacking of United Airlines Flight 93 on the fourth anniversary of the Sept. 11, 2001, terrorist attacks.

The program will be called "The Flight That Fought Back" and will include about 45 minutes of re-created scenes depicting what happened before the plane crashed in a southwestern Pennsylvania field. Forty passengers and crew members were killed.

The show has the cooperation of United Airlines and some family members of those killed.

"A few people didn't want to have anything to do with it just because they just don't want to have anything to do with anything [relating to that day]," Phil Craig, the project's executive producer, told the Eric Bay, a 9/11 widower, visits Shanksville, Pa., at last year's memorial.

Pittsburgh Post-Gazette. "I think there will be some people who don't like it because their family member isn't highlighted, but when you're a filmmaker, you have to balance all sorts of things."

Craig said the show isn't meant to be a definitive look at what happened that day, and that there are still unanswered questions about what went on.

"There are some dialogue scenes on the plane, 90 percent of these are based on tape evidence and the memories of people who spoke to people on the flight," he said. "We have invented a few lines of dialogue that's been based on consultation with people who knew them." (AP)

'I WAS IN THE NEIGHBORHOOD': What is reality, you ask? Well, it isn't Fox's "Princes of Malibu." On an upcoming episode, Celine Dion makes a contrived-sounding cameo as a celebrity pawn in the stepdad-vs.-spoiled brats power struggle.

Entertainment

'A' for Anything Goes

In the violent world of video games, who is rating the raters?

SLIDING SCALE | Killing. Vehicular mayhem. Sexual conquests. Teenagers can experience it all through today's breed of video games, primarily among those rated "M" for mature.

The Entertainment Software Rating Board is responsible for that rating system, and this self-regulating video-game industry group has suddenly found itself on the hot seat.

"There is no doubting the fact that the widespread availability of sexually explicit and graphically violent video games makes the challenge of parenting much harder," said Sen. Hillary Rodham Clinton, who asked the Federal Trade Commission to investigate one of the most violent titles, "Grand Theft Auto: San Andreas."

ONE BAD APPLE: Patricia Vance, president of the Entertainment Software Rating Board, has warned critics not to blame the ratings system for game modifications.

In this top-selling console game, the main character seeks bloody vengeance on gang-filled streets, firing automatic weapons and picking up scantily clad women.

But what really riles media watchdog groups are scenes in which nude "girlfriends" join in explicit sex acts. The scenes become "playable" with the help of a freely available download created by a Dutch programmer.

The ESRB's president, Patricia

Vance, cautions the public not to jump to conclusions while the board investigates the case.

"Regardless of what if anything was modified," she said, "it's a game that the ESRB has made as clear as it can that it was not intended for anyone under the age of 17."

In the end, the ratings can be of little use to parents and gamers.

THQ Inc. offers two versions of "The Incredibles" for PC — one rated "E" for everyone and the other "T" for teen — each described as containing "cartoon violence." And "Chris MoneyMaker's World Poker Championship" is rated "M" due to "simulated gambling," while Hoyle's "Poker Series" gets an "E," also for "simulated gambling."

Then there's Atari's "F/A-18: Operation Iraqi Freedom," which allows the player to "Kick some Ba'ath" by dropping bombs on Iraq. It's rated "E," just like "Nancy Drew: The Secret of Shadow Ranch."

Television

HE SAID HE'D CALL: Lisa Kudrow's post-"Friends" series, "The Comeback," is on the re-up bubble. "I don't know what the criteria are for HBO right now," she said. "They usually don't say anything for a little while. I'm hoping to hear soon."

Gambling on 'Ink'

Two stations roll the dice on depicting the louche side of life

DEBUT | Our current pop-cultural conversation seems incomplete without a brief nod to two television obsessions — tattoos and gambling.

Premiering tonight, "Miami Ink" (10 p.m., TLC) is at least the second basic-cable series to offer viewers a behind-the-scenes look at life in a tattoo parlor. "Ink" takes place in South Beach, Miami. Will there be scenes in a hot tub? You'll have to watch to find out.

ESPN will devote 32 episodes to the 2005 World Series of Poker (8 p.m., ESPN). Viewers can watch two hours of card playing every Tuesday evening from now until November. Wow, the thrill of victory and the agony of defeat.

It's odd that ESPN devotes so much time to poker, since it's a sports network and sports figures are supposed to shun gambling. Mickey Mantle and Willie Mays were once excommunicated from major league baseball when they associated themselves with casinos.

Now the premiere sports channel is essentially equating sports with gambling. Isn't playing cards something you do instead of watching television? KEVIN MCDONOUGH

The Chinese crested again wins contest of unappealing pooches

Ugly, your name is Sam.

At least, that's what the judges at the World's Ugliest Dog Contest at the Sonoma-Marín Fair in California concluded earlier this month when they awarded that dubious superlative to a 14-year-old Chinese crested from Santa Barbara, Calif.

It was the third consecutive landslide for Sam, a hairless, blind, dermatologically challenged fellow who bears more than a passing resemblance to Yoda or maybe the Cryptkeeper. (The first year Sam won, Japanese television producers — struck by his resemblance to one of their more successful imports, Godzilla — hurriedly dispatched a camera crew.)

This year, a photo of Sam in all his wrinkled, mottled glory has been whizzing around the Net, inspiring simultaneous fascination and revulsion the world over.

"Every year the photo gets worse" — or, depending on how you look at it, better — said Sam's owner, Susie Lockheed.

"He has a big hernia bulge, extra-long nails, a lipoma lump in the middle of his chest, and a little line of moles and warts that march down his snout like a stegosaurus," Lockheed said.

Sam's many blackheads are particularly vexing because Lockheed runs a facial and waxing business, "and he will not let me work on him."

Whenever I get him near the facial steamer, he turns into Cujo."

BEST IN SHOW:

Yes, that is a dog. A prize-winning one, even.

Dog Gone Ugly

Tails, an all-natural animal-food store in Bonita Springs, Fla., is gearing up for her annual ugly-dog contest.

It's held every August at the Flamingo Island Flea Market, though Gold doesn't know the exact date yet: During hurricane season, you play these things by ear. But she does know the odds-on favorite breed to walk away with the ribbon: Last year's winner, like Sam, was a crested.

"These dogs are so ugly that in a way they're beautiful," she said. "Everybody has a concept of what a dog should be, and these dogs aren't it. They look more like rats."

Not surprisingly, fans of these usually elegant, playful toy dogs prefer comparisons to a different species.

Breeder and vet Sophia Kaluzniacki of Green Valley, Ariz., remembers the little girl visiting her practice who spied her veteran crested, Leo, snoozing in a waiting-room chair.

"Her eyes got really big," Kaluzniacki said, "and she said, 'Look, Mom, over there! It's a live My Little Pony!'"

Gold theorizes that there's a fine line between beautiful and ugly, and attitude has a lot to do with it.

"It's so in the eye of the beholder," agreed Lockheed, whose other dog, Tater Tot, a 13-year-old crested-Chihuahua mix, was a runner-up in the contest. Despite Tater Tot's "troll-doll hair," Lockheed thinks she's "really cute."

Google's Eye on Everybody

Technology

Privacy advocates fear company's reach may endanger users

While many Internet users eagerly await each new technology from Google Inc., its rapid expansion is also prompting concerns that the company may know too much: what you read, where you surf and travel, whom you write.

"This is a lot of personal information in a single basket," said Chris Hoofnagle, senior counsel with the Electronic Privacy Information Center. "Google is becoming one of the largest privacy risks on the Internet."

Not that Hoofnagle is suggesting that Google has strayed from its mantra of making money "without doing evil." Rather, some privacy advocates worry about the potential: The data's very existence — conveniently all under a single digital roof — makes Google a prime target for abuse by overzealous law enforcers and criminals alike.

Through hacking or with the assistance of rogue employees, they say, criminals could steal data for blackmail or identity theft.

Law enforcement, meanwhile, could obtain information that later becomes public, in court filings or otherwise, about people who are not even targets of a particular investigation.

Though Google's privacy protection is generally comparable to — even better than — that of Microsoft Corp., Yahoo Inc., Amazon.com Inc. and a host of other Internet giants, "I don't think any of the others have the scope of personal information that Google does," Hoofnagle said.

ALL-KNOWING: Chris Hoofnagle says Google may be the biggest privacy risk.

The concerns reflect Google's growing heft. As startups get bigger and more powerful, scrutiny often follows.

Google says it takes privacy seriously.

"In general, as a company, we look at privacy from design all the way [through] launch," said Nicole Wong, a Google associate general counsel.

That means product managers, engineers and executives — not just lawyers — consider the privacy implications as new technologies are developed and new services offered, Wong said.

She also said that Google regularly seeks feedback from civil liberties groups. The groups credit Google for listening even if it doesn't always agree.

Google's privacy statements specify that only some of its employees have access to personal data — on a need-to-know basis — and such access is logged to deter abuse.

Eric Goldman, a cyberlaw professor at Marquette University, believes the focus ought to be on the underlying problem: access by hackers and law enforcement.

"We still need to have good technology to inhibit the hackers. We still need laws that make hacking criminal. We still need restraints on government surveillance," Goldman said. "Google's database doesn't change any of that."

Who Needs That Car Payment, Anyway?

$200 for a hair dryer. We'll wait here while you laugh.

Done? All right, what if that $200 was money well-spent? Because with the T3 TOURMALINE II IONIC HAIR DRYER (at Sephora and sephora.com), it really is. Before testing this super-high-tech geek-meets-chic instrument, it was assumed that any appliance in the three-figure range should really either make food, store food or clean up food. Add in the fact that the dryer attributes some of its power to a gemstone and the weirdness quotient rises. But when the T3 dried hair from sopping wet to bone dry in seven minutes (it usually takes 30) and all but eliminated frizzies (without the use of any product) AND hair stayed sleek for three days when D.C. felt like a giant armpit, our eyes were opened. You Can Teach An Old Bra New Tricks

If your bra fits properly, congratulations. If your bra is stretched out and unsupportive, A) Get fitted for a new bra; and B) Eke a few more months of use out of your old bra with the BRA CLIP ($10, thebraclip.com). The humble little piece of plastic and elastic effectively transforms a conventional bra into a racer-back, giving a little more heft to your cargo. The clip loops around the straps in the back and drags them together; this can leave a bulge that shows under tight shirts, and we found it difficult to put on alone. And possibly to get off — guys who've barely conquered the bra clasp won't know what hit them. HOLLY J. MORRIS (EXPRESS)

4 SUPERSMILE SINGLE DOSE POWDERED MOUTHRINSE ($16, 24 PACKETS at Sephora, see sephora.com for local stores) — just add water. ORAL B BRUSH-UPS (99 CENTS, three strips, Target and drugstores) obliterate coffee stains before they happen.

5 LIPSTICKETS BY PASSPORT COSMETICS ($16, 30 SHEETS, at Sephora) come in three shades. Rip one off, put between lips and pull. CARGO DAILYGLOSS ($10, 30 CAPSULES, at Sephora) gives you shine and color the size of a Tylenol.

6 Blotting paper is as old as the hills, but it's back with a vengeance. Two standouts: SEPHORA MATTE BLOTTING FILM ($10, 50 SHEETS, at Sephora) are plastic, making the oil slick they suck off your face look even more disgusting. BOSCHIA FRESH BLOTTING LINENS ($10, 100 SHEETS, at Sephora) come in lavender and green-tea scents.

7 LANCOME BLUSH PAPIER NACRE ($15, 48 SHEETS, at department stores and Sephora) is available in four shades. Lancôme's STAR BRONZER also comes in paper form ($16); so does the company's MIRACLE SO MAGIC perfume ($15).

8 Like gremlins, these two products utterly change character when you add water. CLEAN AND CLEAR INSTANT DISSOLVING CLEANSING SHEETS ($4.49, 24 SHEETS, at Target and drugstores) becomes a foaming cleanser; AVEDA CONTROL TAPE ($19.50, 20 STRIPS, at Aveda salons and aveda.com) transforms into a super-hold gel.

Michael Wilbon

Chat House

Post sports columnist MICHAEL WILBON chatted Live Online Tuesday about Tiger, the Nats, Lance Armstrong and more | washingtonpost.com/liveonline

Much love to Tiger for winning his 10th major. Do you think he will win the "career slam" for an unprecedented third time? If so, how soon?

I think it's phenomenal to be alive at a time where I get to see one of the great performers in the history of sports in the middle of a great athletic journey. I got to see and appreciate the entirety of Muhammad Ali's career. All of Michael Jordan's career. I hope to be watching Tiger at his best for the next 15 years. How cool would that be?

Are you taking Redskins questions?

Let's review: Tiger won a major. Lance Armstrong is about to hit the mountains. The Nationals are in first place in their inaugural season in D.C. The NHL is back in business. The Wizards are wheeling and dealing. The Yankees and Red Sox are about to do battle. Derrek Lee is chasing the Triple Crown. Redskins? Please. They're on vacation, dude. They're not even at work.

So after reading your last article, I have come to the realization you hate Kwame! It almost seems personal.

All things in sports have some personal element to them. Do I hate Kwame? No. He's been pleasant enough. My problem is he didn't grow up and wanted to blame everybody for his being a bust.

Is there any chance the Wiz can get Eddy Curry or Tyson Chandler?

How? What do the Wizards have the Bulls would want? The Wiz don't have the money, so they would have to do a sign and trade.

I am concerned about the Nationals' recent slide. Do you agree?

Yes, you have to be. Even though they've been involved in their customary close games, they're losing a lot of them. And worse, they're being chased by the Braves, who've won 13 straight division titles. But it should be fun, if the Nats can hang in, to see a race up-close and personal. Our own race, not one borrowed by Baltimore.

What a weekend: Tiger wins the Open, Yanks take down the Red Sox, Taylor over Hopkins, Tony Stewart re-emerges, the two hardest stages of the Tour de France. And questions about Kwame Brown. Sigh. So, how about Raffy? Hall of Fame?

Of course Raffy goes into the Hall of Fame. He's going to wind up with perhaps 600 home runs and 3,100 hits.

Make Way for Motorcades

I RECENTLY RETURNED to the U.S. after several years in London and am living in D.C. for the first time. I am appalled by the way that President Bush and Vice President Cheney are regularly driven through the city in high-speed motorcades that alarm the onlooker with wailing sirens, roaring motorcycle engines and big, black cars filled with gun-toting men wearing sunglasses. It reminds one of the typical entourage of a military dictator in a banana republic.

During six years in central London, I rarely heard sirens of any kind. On Pennsylvania Avenue, however, these deafening motorcades are incessant. Why do the good people of D.C. put up with this?

VIRGO (Aug. 23–Sept. 22) You may demonstrate an inability to concentrate solely on one particular concern. You must work to sharpen your focus.

LIBRA (Sept. 23–Oct. 22) You can learn an invaluable lesson from a loved one. Be careful not to get too wrapped up in your own thoughts and concerns.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23–Nov. 21) Today is a good day to make a new, friendly contact with someone who has been more of a rival or opponent. Begin again.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22–Dec. 21) Begin the day with a fresh, renewed outlook and you can enjoy unforeseen rewards.

How you address the unexpected will be of some concern.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22–Jan. 19) You will have one of those days in which you are capable of doing almost anything. Take advantage of positive energy and a rise in ambition.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20–Feb. 18) Someone you love may not be feeling up to par. It will be up to you to find the time to extend a helping hand and demonstrate your concern.

PISCES (Feb. 19–March 20) Try not to be so impatient. Those little habits that get on another's nerves will be magnified when you are in a hurry.

ARIES (March 21–April 19) Expect the unexpected. Be prepared to address topics which you never thought would arise openly, at least not this soon.

TAURUS (April 20–May 20) This is a good day to get closer to someone who means more to you than he or she actually realizes. You may be ready for a commitment.

GEMINI (May 21–June 20) Your interest in dirt will lead you to discover more about those around you than most may want to know. There will be gossip aplenty.

"I had significant hair loss on the top and sides. I began laser treatment and using their products. I thought I was having good results after 2 months, and this was confirmed when my friends started asking 'What are you doing? Your hair looks fuller!' I am finally not ashamed or embarrassed to go to a hairdresser, or sit under lights."

"Over the last 5 years my hair continued to become thinner and thinner. I was so self-conscious of my image. Out of desperation I tried every treatment known in the hair industry. Finally, help was on the way after seeing in the EXPRESS newspaper an ad for Trichology/HairSolutions of VA. I decided to schedule an appointment. This was a great decision, because after 3 months, seeing is believing!"
